

Lateral surface area is the total area of the lateral faces of a prism, or pyramid, or the area of the curved lateral surface of a cylinder. It excludes the area(s) of the base(s) of a cylinder, prism, or pyramid. It is determined by calculating the sum of the areas of the lateral faces of a prism or pyramid or the area of the curved lateral surface of a cylinder.