

The lines cut or intersected by a transversal are coplanar with the transversal. The lines cut/intersected by a transversal do not need to be parallel. When a transversal cuts/intersects parallel lines, the corresponding angles around each intersection are equal in measure.

