

A variable is the quantity that may change within the context of a mathematical problem usually an equation or inequality. Typically a single letter is used to represent a variable with the letters x , y , and z the most common symbols to represent variables.